Cratons to Continents

Guest Editors: Carol D. Frost and Paul A. Mueller

Archean rocks of the Wyoming craton are exposed in Late Cretaceous to Eocene basement-involved uplifts of the Rocky Mountains. This issue's cover image is a WSW view of Continental Tower from the south flank of Wind River Peak, Wind River Mountains, Wyoming. A Paleoproterozoic mafic dike crosscuts Neoproterozoic granite of the Louis Lake Batholith. PHOTO: CAROL FROST.

Elements is published jointly by the Mineralogical Society of America, Mineralogical Society of the UK and Ireland, Mineralogical Association of Canada, Geochemical Society, The Clay Minerals Society, European Association of Geochemistry, International Association of GeoChemistry, Société Française de Minéralogie et de Cristallographie, Association of Applied Geochemists, Deutsche Mineralogische Gesellschaft, Società Italiana di Mineralogia e Petrologia, International Association of Geoanalysts, Polskie Towarzystwo Mineralogiczne (Mineralogical Society of Poland), Sociedad Española de Mineralogía, Swiss Geological Society, Meteoritical Society, Japan Association of Mineralogical Sciences, and International Association on the Genesis of Ore Deposits. The magazine is provided as a benefit to members of these societies.

Elements is published six times a year. Individuals are encouraged to join any one of the participating societies to receive Elements. Institutional subscribers to either of the following journals—American Mineralogist and Canadian Journal of Mineralogy and Petrology—also receive one copy of Elements as part of their subscription. Institutional subscriptions are available for US$185 (US$200 non-US addresses) per year in 2024. Contact the Executive Editor (editor@elementsmagazine.org) for information.
